Explicit images on bishop's laptop: Warrant

COURT Evasive answers, shifty eyes and a passport stamped with known hot spots for child pornography drew the attention of border officials to Bishop Raymond Lahey, 69, a search warrant released Thursday alleges.

The newly unsealed document also claims customs officers say they found several sexually explicit images of boys believed to be as young as eight during a search at Ottawa's airport.

Lahey resigned last month as bishop of the Roman Catholic diocese of Antigonish in Nova Scotia after he was charged with possessing and importing child pornography in Ontario. He surrendered to Ottawa police last week and was released on bail until a court appearance on Nov. 4.

City sees 6 new cases of H1N1 in last week

Flu Outbreak

tim.wieclawski@metronews.ca

HEALTH After no new cases of the H1N1 influenza virus were confirmed for over a month during the summer, Ottawa's public health department has reset the patient count.

In the last week, six new cases of H1N1, also known as swine flu, have been confirmed in Ottawa, bringing the total to 13 since the start of September.

The number of patients reporting symptoms of respiratory illness is increasing, said Thomas Hayes, director of Emergency Preparedness at the Ottawa Hospital Thursday.

Hayes said people are having difficulty differentiating between a cold and flu.

The complications with the flu are far more severe than a cold, said Hayes. They can include pneumonia, kidney failure, and heart failure.

Regular influenza vaccine clinics start in Ottawa this weekend for residents over 65 years old at Holy Trinity High School in Kanata.

Dr. Vera Etches, the city's associate medical officer of health, said they are on track to provide H1N1 vaccinations by November.

The priority remains health-care workers, people with chronic medical conditions, pregnant women and young children first, but within the month, the vaccine will be available for anyone who wants it, she said.

'Leader' pleads guilty in Canadian terror plot

Extremist fifth member of 'Toronto 18' to be convicted

An Islamic extremist who masterminded a plot to bomb downtown Toronto in an effort to terrorize Canadians and cripple the economy became the fifth member of the "Toronto 18" to be convicted Thursday when he entered a surprise guilty plea.

Zakaria Amara, 24, his head bowed, quietly agreed to be tried by a judge alone before admitting his role in the plan aimed in part at forcing Canadian soldiers to leave Afghanistan.

Police thwarted the diabolical plot when they arrested Amara and 17 other people in the summer of 2006.

In an agreed statement of facts, Crown lawyer lone Jaffe told the court that

Terrorist group

- Amara pleaded guilty to two counts — knowingly participating in a terrorist group, and intending to cause an explosion that could kill people or damage property for the benefit of a terrorist group.
- Four of the group members have now pleaded guilty and one was convicted after a trial.
- Charges were stayed or dropped against seven people and six men still face trial.

Amara planned to rent U-Haul trucks, pack them with explosives and detonate them via remote control in the Toronto area.

"It's gonna start kicking ass," Amara said of the planned bombings during a police-intercepted conversation. "It's going to be kicking ass like never before."

Amara said the attack, which he planned over three consecutive days to maximize the panic, would be bigger than that in London in 2005.

One date chosen for the strike was Sept. 11 — the same date as the al-Qaida attacks on the United States in 2001 — "to teach the world to be aware of this date forever," Amara was heard saying during one intercept played for the court.

This long weekend, Ottawa police officers will be out to ensure the travelling public is using seatbelts, that youngsters are properly restrained in vehicles and to catch impaired and aggressive drivers. Shuttle buses may run for Lansdowne

tim.wieclawski@metronews.ca

If the Rolling Stones came to play a concert at Lansdowne Park after it was redeveloped, the city could probably use Queen Elizabeth Driveway for shuttle buses.

"We have a tradition of collaboration with the city for major events in the capital and we will examine it," said Francois Lapointe, executive director of capital planning with the National Capital Commission.

Queen Elizabeth Drive would only be needed for events larger than 40,000 people, according to the Lansdowne Development Transportation Strategy developed by Delcan, a transportation consulting firm for the Ottawa Sports and Entertainment Group.

For regular football games and events closer to

"That is one of our worst detriments."

Catherine Lindquist, on parking and traffic near Lansdowne Park 20,000 people, buses would run up and down Bank Street every minute for the 90 minutes before and after the event.

Smaller events would need buses running every two minutes for an hour before and after the event.

The redevelopment plan calls for on-site parking to be reduced from 2,200 to 1,800 spaces, while adding around 400,000 square feet of business and retail space and an eight-screen cinema.

Catherine Lindquist, executive director of the Glebe Business Improvement Area, said parking shortage and traffic congestion have already been identified as problematic

Butterflies send imaginations aflutter at Carleton over Thanksgiving

TRACEY TONG

This being Thanksgiving weekend, it'll be all about the turkey for many city residents.

But the greenhouse manager at Carleton University hopes the public will spare some time for a different kind of animal.

In its 10th year, Carleton's live butterfly show at the Nesbitt Biology Building is bigger and better than ever. Attracting over 10,000 visitors over its 10-day run, the show features 1,300 butterflies, which arrived in five shipments.

"We have 41 species from around the world," said Ed Bruggink. That number is up from 30

While more than 1,000 area students visited during the week, this long weekend will mostly be about families, some with out-of-town guests.

While the exhibit's only moth — the enormous atlas moth — is a staple at the show, the owl butterfly, with its striking markings and willingness to "ride on a slice of orange" is a favourite with visitors.

Sentence for killing cat 'didn't go far enough,' OHS says

FINE A sentence handed to a man convicted of killing a cat with a shovel was too lenient, the Ottawa Humane Society said Thursday.

Daniel Bordeau, 63, of Marionville was convicted of causing unnecessary pain and suffering to an animal that he claimed stole a steak from his barbecue, the OHS said Thursday.

In June of 2007, witnesses said they saw a man strike a grey-and-white shorthair cat multiple times with the head of a wooden shovel handle. The man admitted in court that the cat died, though its body was never recovered.

OHS inspectors originally charged Bordeau in 2007 and asked the court to prohibit him from ever owning animals again.

Earlier this week, the court ordered Bordeau to pay a one-time fine of $500.

"We're extremely frustrated the sentence didn't go far enough," said OHS inspector Miriam Smith.

Strikers seek intervention

Want museum bosses back at table

TIM WIECLAWSKI and TRACEY TONG

Nearly three weeks after the strike first began, workers from the Canadian Museum of Civilization and the Canadian War Museum will march to Heritage Minister James Moore's office Friday to ask him to return the museum's management to the bargaining table.

After six hours of negotiations on Wednesday afternoon, talks broke down between the Canadian Museum of Civilization Corporation and striking museum staff.

According to the Public Service Alliance of Canada — which represents around 420 museum workers, who have been on strike since Sept. 21 — the talks were called off after the CMCC demanded that workers withdraw their demands for protection against the contracting out of their jobs.

CMCC issued a statement saying it was surprised at the union representatives' sudden decision and "disappointed that the Public Service Alliance of Canada's representatives decided to cut that hopeful process short."

Maria Fitzpatrick, PSAC executive vice-president for the National Capital Region, said in the current economic climate, it was more important than ever that workers were protected from losing their jobs to the lowest bidder.

"Employers who really value their workers provide them with job security," she said. "This is essential to museum workers — it means not contracting out their jobs."

The march leaves the Canadian Museum of Civilization and will go to Heritage Canada before continuing to the Canadian War Museum.

Grits file complaint over federal ads

POLITICS The Liberals have launched a formal complaint with the Treasury Board alleging the Conservative government is "running roughshod" over rules against partisan advertising.

A sweeping national ad campaign to promote last January's federal budget has been blanketing the country at a cost of tens of millions of dollars.

Martha Hall-Findlay, the Liberal public works critic, says the Economic Action Plan ads are "unprecedented" and break at least four different government statutes, including the Financial Administration Act and the Canada Elections Act.

"The Conservatives are buying voters with their own money," Hall-Findlay said in a news release on Thursday.

IOC sends cease-and-desist letter to man who posted Olympic shots on Flickr

VANCOUVER 2010 Games

Amateur photographers in the spectator stands at the Olympics should look over their shoulders before peering through the lens because a powerful organization will be sure to watch what they do with those snapshots.

The International Olympic Committee sent a cease-and-desist letter to Richard Giles, 38, after discovering his collection of images from his three-week solo trip to China for the 2008 Beijing Games on the popular online photo-sharing site Flickr, where he was allowing other people to use them as they wished.

The letter marks the first time the International Olympic Committee — whose website calls it the "supreme authority of the Olympic Movement" — has moved to protect its image on a social media site.

"Images of the Games taken by you may not be used for any purposes other than private, which does not include licensing of the pictures to third parties," said the notice sent via email on Tuesday and signed by Howard Stupp, director of legal affairs at the IOC.

"In addition, please be advised that the Olympic identifications such as the Olympic rings, the emblems and mascots of the Olympic Games, the word 'Olympic' and images of the Olympic Games belong to the IOC and cannot be used without its prior written consent."

The letter said the IOC had not given Giles any such consent and therefore the photos he took inside the venues were unauthorized, including a fantastic shot of Jamaican runner Usain Bolt smiling while biting his tongue seconds after he broke the world record for the 100-metre dash in his golden shoes.

It asked Giles to confirm that he had complied with their request to "cease and desist, with immediate effect" by the end of business day Thursday.

N.S. man files new abuse suit

A Nova Scotia man who has filed a civil lawsuit against the Roman Catholic Church alleging sexual abuse spoke out on the accusations for the first time Thursday, saying he doesn't want to see a separate class-action settlement fail.

Philip Latimer, who alleges he was sexually molested by a priest for four years beginning when he was 11, said he launched his lawsuit partly because the class-action settlement was brokered by a bishop now facing child pornography charges.

"That triggered something within me," Latimer told a news conference in Halifax.

"I want healing, true healing."

Latimer alleges Rev. Allan MacDonald — who is deceased — plied him with free pizza and alcohol to abuse him while he was a priest in Havre Boucher, N.S., a small town near Cape Breton.

"I was put into a dark hole, a dark, dark place, and I cannot describe to you the pain that I entered into, the shame that I felt," Latimer said.

The lawsuit filed Wednesday names the archdiocese of Halifax and the diocese of Antigonish as defendants. They have not reacted to Latimer's statement of claim.

The Antigonish diocese is at the centre of a landmark sexual abuse settlement negotiated by Bishop Raymond Lahey, who is facing charges of possessing and importing child pornography in Ottawa.

Neither the allegations contained in the lawsuit nor those against Lahey have been proven in court.

Lawyers for Latimer say their client is opting out of the $15-million class-action settlement announced in August because he wants more information on what the church knew at the time of the alleged abuse and if it failed to act on that knowledge.

"I would suspect the people of this province and the people of this particular diocese want to know what went on, want to know how deep the rot was or is, and need to know by a priest of the Catholic Episcopal Corp. of Antigonish since Jan. 1, 1950." THE CANADIAN PRESS

New health minister won't say if Ontario will try to recoup millions spent on eHealth

SCANDAL Ontario's new health minister had few answers Thursday on what she planned to do to quell public anger over the hundreds of millions of dollars wasted by the province in a bungled attempt to create electronic health records.

Just 24 hours into her new job, Deb Matthews was in the hot seat to provide specifics on whether more heads would roll in the wake of a stinging auditor's report into the $1-billion eHealth scandal, or if she planned to recoup some of the wasted money.

"I have no patience for expenditures that don't directly contribute to better outcomes for people in this province," she said.

That's the message she gave Rob Devitt, eHealth's interim CEO, when she spoke with him Wednesday, Matthews said. Meetings with eHealth board chairwoman Rita Burak,

"I have no patience for expenditures that don't directly contribute to better outcomes for people in this province."

Deb Matthews, health minister auditor general Jim McCarter and the CEO of Cancer Care Ontario — the latest agency to be dragged into the spending scandal that's engulfed the Liberal government — are also on her to-do list, she added.

But asked twice if she would go after consultants who were overpaid by eHealth, Matthews dodged the question, saying only that she's looking at the auditor general's report very carefully.

Federal government, Alberta promise cash for carbon capture project

FUNDING The Alberta and federal governments promised $865 million in funding for a carbon capture and storage project near Edmonton on Thursday, but officials acknowledge that it will be years before any greenhouse gas emissions are piped underground.

"We have to start somewhere," said federal Natural Resources Minister Lisa Raitt. "We start today, and we think — we know — we're on the right path."

The two levels of government have teamed up with Shell Canada, Chevron Canada and Marathon Oil Sands to push forward the Quest project, which is projected to eventually collect up to 1.1 million tonnes of climate change-causing carbon dioxide a year from the Scotford oilsands upgrader, pipe it to a wellhead and inject it more than two kilometres underground.

Total cost of the project is expected to be $1.35 billion, with the balance coming from the companies involved.

Dziekanski's mother files suit against RCMP, B.C. airport over his death

VANCOUVER Robert Dziekanski's mother says four RCMP officers acted with malice and used excessive force when they confronted her son at Vancouver's airport and stunned him multiple times with a Taser.

"Mr. Dziekanski died as a result of injuries he sustained in the assault and physical restraint by the RCMP members," says the statement of claim filed on Wednesday.

The officers were called to the airport after Dziekanski began throwing furniture in the international terminal. The lawsuit notes that the Taser was fired within seconds of their arrival.

Dziekanski then needed immediate medical attention, the lawsuit says, but the officers did nothing to help him. No one named in the lawsuit has filed a statement of defence but the officers testified at the public inquiry that they felt threatened by Dziekanski when he picked up a stapler.

Journalist refuses to pay damages

An Argentinian journalist says she will not pay damages to Mexico's former first lady, despite a court order in an invasion of privacy case. Mexico's Supreme Court has ruled that Olga Wornat, left, must comply with a lower court order to pay 500,000 pesos — about $37,000 — to Martha Sahagun, the wife of former president Vicente Fox. Sahagun sued Wornat in 2005 because she said an article the journalist published that year about the annulment of her first marriage sought to personally damage her. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

French minister denies paying boys for sex

PARIS France's culture minister denied Thursday paying boys for sex, in an impassioned response to critics on the right and left demanding that he resign over a candid book recounting encounters with male prostitutes in Thailand.

"I condemn sexual tourism, which is a disgrace. I condemn pedophilia, which I have never in any way participated in," Frederic Mitterrand, 62, nephew of late president Francois Mitterrand, said in a TV interview. In a 2005 book, La mauvaise vie, or The Bad Life, Mitterrand describes Bangkok's brothels in rich, torrid detail, and the joy and freedom of paying "boys" for sex.

Mitterrand admitted to "errors" in paying for sex in the past, but said he had relations only with men his age.

Tolerate the Taliban?

Source: Obama prepared to accept certain factors

U.S. President Barack Obama is prepared to accept some Taliban involvement in Afghanistan's political future and appears inclined to send only as many more U.S. troops as needed to keep al-Qaida at bay, a senior administration official said Thursday.

The sharpened focus by Obama's team on fighting al-Qaida above all other goals, while downgrading the emphasis on the Taliban, comes in the midst of an intensely debated administration review of the increasingly unpopular eight-year-old war.

Though aides stress that the president's final decision on any changes is still at least two weeks away, the emerging thinking suggests that he would be very unlikely to favour a large military increase of the kind being advocated by the top U.S. commander in Afghanistan, Gen. Stanley McChrystal.

Obama's developing strategy on the Taliban will "not tolerate their return to power," the senior official said in an interview with

The Associated Press. But the U.S. would fight only to keep the Taliban from retaking control of Afghanistan's central government — something it is now far from being capable of — and from giving renewed sanctuary in Afghanistan to al-Qaida, the official said.

Bowing to the reality that the Taliban is too ingrained in Afghanistan's culture to be entirely defeated, the administration is prepared to accept some Taliban role in parts of Afghanistan, the official said.

Military ousts more lesbians

Women are far more likely than men to be kicked out of the U.S. military under the "don't ask, don't tell" policy against gays in uniform, according to new government figures.

Women accounted for 15 per cent of active and reserve members of the military, but more than one-third of the 619 people discharged last year because of sexual orientation.

The disparity was particularly striking in the Air Force, where women represented 20 per cent of all personnel, but 61 per cent of those expelled.

NASA ready to take a smack at the moon

For as long as man has looked up, the moon has inspired romance, poetry and songs. Man also likes blowing things up. Now we get to do both — in the name of science.

The aim of Friday's deliberate crash of two unmanned NASA spacecraft into the moon is to see if they can kick up some ice. It is the 20th lunar crash, most of them done on purpose, since the Russians first did it 50 years ago last month.

For those fearing that the crashes like Friday's could cause the moon to shift its orbit or send huge chunks back to Earth, agency scientists have some words of comfort.

They say such crashes have no more effect on the moon than an eyelash.

Taking shots

• Friday's first smack: a 2.2-ton empty rocket stage crashing into the moon at twice the speed of a bullet, equal to the power of 1.5 tons of TNT, followed four minutes later with a smaller hit.

dropping on a jet. Sure the impact may seem big, but so is the moon.

No one personifies the blow-'em-up-in-the-name-of-science more than Brown University geologist Peter Schultz, a scientist who worked on NASA's similar purposeful crash into a comet in 2005. He's a regular cosmic crasher in the name of science — and jollies.

It's human nature to blow things up and dissect what happens, Schultz said Thursday from the Vertical Gun Range at NASA's Ames Research Center.

"There's a reason you drop pumpkins off a 30-story building," he told The Associated Press.

NASA's plan, which often mistakenly was called "bombing the moon," has generated lots of late-night humour and even some outrage.

David Letterman, who has dropped watermelons off Manhattan rooftops, has riffed on it repeatedly. He speculated on a counterattack by the moon with his own NASA-like animation and then compared it to the U.S. war in Iraq, as an attack-first, ask-questions-later scenario.

Dangerous deflation

InBusiness

Charles Davies

metronews.ca/inbusiness

If it isn't one thing, it's another. When economists aren't fretting over a renewal of inflation, they're fearful of deflation, a general fall in the level of prices for goods and services. Deflation is lately seen to have taken root in Japan. Consumer prices excluding food in that country dropped 2.4 per cent in August from the previous year, the biggest fall since the country started keeping records in 1971. It remains uncertain whether deflation will be exported to Canada like some economic H1N1, but this is not an infection we want. As tantalizing as it might be to think of our dollars having increased purchasing power, deflation would have mostly negative consequences. Falling prices can actually discourage purchasing, and in the longer term curtail output and investment, leading to lower overall demand. Eventually, you get a deflationary spiral that shrivels the economy.

For those who run businesses, deflation has scary implications. Take a grocery chain like Loblaw — deflation means product prices on the shelf decline, even while other operating costs such as wages, thanks to labour contracts, have built-in increases. Margins are then squeezed even tighter, bad news in a business that in recent years has been rapaciously competitive and, since last year, hobbled by recession.

Loblaw just introduced its new "Rounded Down" program of price reductions and its deputy chairman has recently said that food inflation is turning into food deflation. That will put grocery retailers under even more intense pressure to build sales revenues on the basis of volume rather than price. It means being locked into expansion plans to build the ever larger stores that can actually deliver volume and continuing with internal process improvements to make stock delivery and store operations more efficient.

For Loblaw, imminent deflation is just one more piece of distasteful news. The company has struggled successfully in recent years to rethink its product offering, fix a flawed supply chain, and fortify the bottom line, all with grocery predators like Walmart encroaching on its territory. The payoff has been elusive. Loblaw Companies shares were worth more than $76 just four years ago. Today they're just above $31. If deflation infects the checkout counter, the share price becomes just as vulnerable as the price of tomatoes.

Flu and loathing in the Canadian capital

UrbanCompass

Steve Collins

metronews.ca/collins

There are still very few infections here, but official estimates that a third of Canadians could catch the H1N1 flu certainly have a way of catching one's attention. The advent of the expected second wave of swine flu has resulted in an epidemic of information, some of it contradictory.

Minds have not been eased, for example, by an unpublished study suggesting regular flu vaccinations actually increase vulnerability to H1N1, and another that found no evidence that all our obsessive hand-washing does a bit of good against the piggy sniffles.

That's science, always asking and doubting, but our policy makers don't have that luxury. They have to answer the question of what we do right now.

So, in Ottawa, seasonal shots are recommended for seniors starting next week. They are thought to have more to fear from the regular flu, which kills a few thousand every year. Then come swine flu vaccinations, prioritized for risk, and only after that a late round of regular flu shots for the rest of us. All of this is of course subject to change, and that too heightens anxiety.

We're being assured that the H1N1 vaccine will be here in early November, when the virus is already expected to be well underway. The federal government dismisses reports that it could be late November or early December.

Then there are the jabsceptics. They remember the U.S.'s massive 1976 swine flu vaccination campaign, which resulted in cases of Guillain-Barre syndrome (GBS), some of which were fatal. The expected pandemic never came. My grandfather's one of the refuseniks. He's immersed himself in reading, some of it dubious, about possible side-effects, and wants nothing to do with the new flu shot. We worry, because he lives in a retirement residence, that his convictions may put his neighbours at risk.

I have to admit to being a little edgy myself, because I read too many newspapers. I'm in the age group that seems to get sicker from the bug, and I've got a crummy pair of lungs. Every time someone coughs near me, I stiffen. Then I catch myself. It's hardly helpful to get so flu-obsessed that we start to see each other primarily as disease vectors.

It's important to keep perspective. Since the beginning of September, 13 people have tested positive for H1N1, only two were hospitalized and one, who also had chronic medical conditions, died.

So we wash our hands, sneeze into our sleeves (while trying not to stare at everybody's nasty sleeves), stay home if we get sick, and wait it out.

MAYANS

Apolinario Chile Pixtun is tired of being bombarded with frantic questions about the Mayan calendar supposedly "running out" on Dec. 21, 2012. After all, it's not the end of the world.

Or is it? Definitely not, the Mayan elder insists. "I came back from England last year and, man, they had me fed up with this stuff."

A significant time period for the Mayas does end on the date, and enthusiasts have found a series of astronomical alignments they say coincide in 2012, including one that happens roughly only once every 25,800 years.

But most archeologists, astronomers and Maya say the only thing likely to hit Earth is a meteor shower of New Age philosophy, pop astronomy and Internet dooms-day rumours.

And it can only get worse. Next month

Hollywood's "2012" opens in cinemas, featuring earthquakes, meteor showers and a tsunami dumping an aircraft carrier on the White House.

Loonie taking flight

Some predict parity with greenback this year

The Canadian dollar appears to be again reaching for parity.

With the greenback falling against most global currencies, the loonie has caught an updraft that has seen it gain about three cents in just over a week, to approach 95 cents US.

And many factors — including an expected positive jobs report from Statistics Canada on Friday — are expected to help keep the loonie rising, possibly to parity by the end of the year.

The consensus is for the agency to report that 5,000 net jobs were created in September. That is a modest number, but marks a major difference from the situation in the U.S. — against whose currency the loonie is measured.

It would represent the second monthly employment gain in Canada and a clear indication the country is bouncing back from recession, whereas the U.S. is still reporting massive three-digit monthly job losses.

In fact, the U.S. hasn't had a positive reading in almost two years.

riveting.

But so were the performances of the females who, let's face it, made the guys look good. In particular Barb Underhill, the 46-year-old who partnered with Martini to win the World title a quarter of a century ago. This time she skated alongside a flashy forward, 52-year-old Ron Duguay. They formed the oldest duo by far, but they were just plain spectacular.

She in tight leather pants and hockey skates — his trademark Bon Jovi hair flowed. Underhill and Duguay made every move at high speed and with Barb Underhill flair.

"This is who I am and it's such a huge part of me," said Underhill, who hadn't performed since 1998 in an exhibition at Maple Leaf Gardens, now the icy field of play for Battle of the Blades.

"When I stopped skating, the light went out and I couldn't find anything to replace it," she reflected. "Now I'm getting this second chance to do what I love."

When beginning to prepare, Barb Underhill pulled out her little skating dress then tossed it aside. She had been working with the Ontario Hockey League Guelph Storm and the Anaheim Ducks teaching power skating. Hockey boots and blades seemed to make sense for her on-ice revival.

Until her routine with Ron Duguay, her children had not witnessed her in competition.

"When I saw my 14-year-old son's face I thought he was going to burst with pride," Underhill enthused. "It was like reliving my great years."

Well worth the effort.

The hockey players may get most of the attention but Barb Underhill's performance went beyond being amusing and entertaining; it was inspiring.

BC's Battle of the Blades has confirmed two things. First and foremost, hockey players, even retired ones, attract huge audiences. Secondly, figure skaters are underrated when it comes to appreciating this country's sporting heroes.

"It's getting more competitive than I ever envisioned," said Paul Martini, a former World pairs champion who's instructing the puck studs in the finer points of skating. "It's like teaching kids to walk. The things we normally do are not normal for these guys."

On opening night 1.95 million Canadians tuned in to watch the likes of Bob Probert, Tie Domi and Claude Lemieux execute lifts and spirals.

It was both startling and

O'Hara brings beast to life

Canadian-born actress a Wild Thing in classic children's tale

NED EHRBAR
Metro World News

Catherine O'Hara has done her fair share of voiceover work, but never before has she had her performance recorded while rolling around on a stage with a microphone strapped to her forehead.

"It's not like standing behind a mike by yourself in a booth, like you usually do," she says. "We were all together playing the scenes."

The technique allowed O'Hara, and her fellow creatures in Where The Wild Things Are, which opens next week, to more fully embody their characters.

And, O'Hara admits, she may have embodied her character — Judith, a troublesome Wild Thing with a sharp horn — a bit too much. "I was kind of shocked when I saw the movie and it wasn't me," she says. "I thought I was actually in the movie." Of course, all that time on stage gave O'Hara, a veteran of many great ensemble casts, the chance to work more closely with her co-stars, including Forest Whitaker, James Gandolfini, Lauren Ambrose and Chris Cooper, something she appreciated greatly.

The movie is based on a 23-page book, so there was n't a whole lot of source material for O'Hara to draw on in defining her character. Luckily, the Second City veteran has something of a knack for improvisation, as any fan of her work in Christopher Guest's films already knows.

But she and her co-stars also felt enormous pressure to successfully bring director Spike Jonze's interpretation of the beloved children's book to the screen. She's proud of the result, even though it may not be exactly what all of the book's fans are expecting.

"I know everyone who's trying to sell a movie says this, but I think it is so up for interpretation, like the book," O'Hara says. "And it's as simply presented as possible, in the world of

"I know Spike really fought for that, to not explain everything, and to make it as open to interpretation as possible. And I think he pulled it off."

The ick-ing point

Spike Jonze and Max Records.

- For his big-screen adaptation of Where the Wild Things Are, director Spike Jonze was trying very hard to get inside the mind of a child.

And to get into the head of the child at the centre of the film, newcomer Max Records, the director had to be willing to make some sacrifices.

Late in the film, young Max takes refuge inside one of the titular wild things, emerging after covered in goop. Jonze admits this was one sequence his star wasn't totally game for.

"He just did not want to get in it," Jonze remembers. "He said, 'I'll only do it if afterward you let me cover you in it.' So afterward we went back to his room and he just covered me in it."

Life's dull at Retreat

Couples RetreatDirector: Pete BillingsleyStars: Vince Vaughn, Jon Favreau, Malin AkermanClassification: PGRating:

PHIL BROWN
for Metro Canada

When Vince Vaughn and Jon Favreau debuted Swingers in 1996, it seemed like the world got two new kings of comedy. The pair's output since then has been disappointingly inconsistent, bringing both big hits (Old School for Vaughn, Iron Man for Favreau as a director) and big misses (you know the ones).

But at least there was always the hope that when the pair worked together as writers it would guarantee quality. Unfortunately that hope has vanished with Couples Retreat. Favreau and Vaughn teamed up on both sides of the camera for this romantic comedy, but sadly produced one of their weakest efforts.

Vaughn and Favreau star as a pair of married men who are talked into a week-long holiday retreat with their near-divorced friend, played by Jason Bateman, and their wives.

Unfortunately when they get to the tropical resort, they learn that they've been swindled into a week of couple's therapy. Guess what? The couples that thought their relationships worked end up being just as dysfunctional as the ones planning a divorce.

It's all very predictable and while the actors bring out their established comic personas through a series of marathon improv sessions, the smattering of laughs can't enliven the tired plot.

The wives are all played by talented actresses (Malin Akerman, Kristin Bell, and Kristin Davis), but unfortunately none of them are permitted to do much beyond looking dumbfounded as the guys make fools of themselves. This problem sums up the film, which feels like a series of missed opportunities.

Couples Retreat is a pleasant enough time-waster with some decent laughs, but given the talent involved it should have been more.

It's nice to see Vaughn and Favreau acknowledge their age and make a movie about adults, too bad it turned out to be just as disposable as any mass-produced romantic comedy. At least the cast and crew got a free tropical getaway.

Vaughn, Favreau ... and Billingsley

InFocus

Richard Crouse

metronews.ca/infocus

Everyone knows Vince Vaughn and Jon Favreau are BFFs. They've co-starred in a number of movies and when they aren't sharing the screen they're sharing producing and writing credits.

They are to Hollywood what toast and jam is to breakfast. That is to say, it's almost unthinkable to have one without the other. But just as peanut butter can spice up any slice of toast and jam, the Vaughn/Favreau recipe for success has a third secret ingredient.

The name Peter Billingsley may not ring a bell, but say the phrase "You'll shoot your eye out," and suddenly the image of the blonde youngster with oversized glasses and a Christmas wish for a Red Ryder BB gun comes to mind.

His portrayal of Ralphie in A Christmas Story is a classic; but that was 1983 and this is now. He's all grown up and after making over 100 commercials and countless after-school specials he's now a big time producer and director, most often working as the third leg of Vince and Jon's tripod.

He produced Iron Man, Zathura and others with Favreau, and The Break Up and Wild West Comedy Show with Vaughn. This weekend he steps behind the camera to direct his two pals in Couples Retreat.

He hasn't, however, completely given up acting. One of the pleasures of the Wild West Comedy Show was watching

A director now, Pete Billingsley is best remembered for being Ralphie in 1983's A Christmas Story.

Billingsley and Vaughn re-enact a scene from the after school special The Fourth Man, a hyper-serious drama about a kid who gets hooked on steroids.

But his appearances haven't been confined to poking fun at his earlier work. In 1993 he starred in an underrated straight-to-video sci fi/horror gem called Arcade (written by Batman's David S. Goyer) playing a "virtual reality addict" who frees a tormented spirit from a video game. It's a TRON wannabe, but good b-movie fun nonetheless.

The next year he wrote, directed and starred in the short film The Sacred Fire, a psychological drama about a vampire hunter.

"Pete has great ideas and he's a really balanced, easy, smart and nice guy. He's really intelligent but really just respectful of people."

Vince Vaughn

More recently he has confined himself to bit parts in the movies he produces. Catch peeks of him in The Break-Up, Iron Man and Four Christmases.

Billingsley is one of the rare happy endings from Hollywood's child star system.

"Pete has great ideas and he's a really balanced, easy, smart and nice guy," says Vaughn. "He's really intelligent but really just respectful of people."

Heartbreaking Silence

Lorna's Silence

Director: Jean-Pierre Dardenne, Luc Dardenne
Stars: Arta Dobroshi, Jeremie Renier, Fabrizio Rongione
Classification: STC
Rating: ****

PHIL BROWN
for Metro Canada

REVIEW Lorna's Silence — the latest film by Cannes favourites the Dardenne brothers — is a powerful and emotionally draining experience.

Watching the film can't exactly be described as fun, but the raw emotions and difficult subject matter the Dardennes study with their unflinching handheld cameras are vital and compelling. The movie might be a little more conventional than the previous features by the masterful Belgian siblings, but it's no less emotionally challenging.

Arta Dobroshi brings a cold exterior and conflicted interior to the lead role of Lorna. She plays a woman who has married a pathetic junkie named Claudy to secure herself Belgian citizenship and plans to quickly divorce the sorry man to marry a Russian criminal as part of the same scam.

The operation is run by Fabio, a sleazy underground figure with mysterious connections. Lorna takes part in the disreputable scheme in the hopes of making enough money to open a café with her boyfriend. It's clear early on this is little more than a fantasy and Lorna is stuck in a ring of human exploitation.

The Dardennes never paint the characters as heroes or villains, instead presenting some flawed humans trapped in overwhelming circumstances.

It's a heartbreaking film, but a rewarding one offering plenty of material for passionate red-eyed discussion to be carried out by the audience long after the credits roll.

Snow fun for horror fans

PHIL BROWN

Whether or not you will enjoy the Norwegian horror romp Dead Snow essentially comes down to your reaction to the following combination of words: Nazi zombies. If that sounds tasteless and exploitative, then run from the theatre. If you even smirk at the concept, then you'll probably have a blast.

Appreciating Dead Snow requires absolutely no brainpower. The movie is pure goofy/gory fun tailor-made for audiences who love being scared in the dark.

Nazi zombies go on the rampage in the Norwegian horror film Dead Snow.

Dead Snow stars a collection of bland medical students who head out to a cabin in the woods for a weekend of drinking and skiing.

From the beginning they're lambs heading into the slaughter (even commenting on the similarity of their situation to the butchered youngsters in The Evil Dead).

They soon discover that they are on land haunted by an army of zombie Nazis who stalk the snow-covered landscape looking for flesh to feast on.

The fact that the victims are medical students only allows for a few impromptu stitchings and amputations before heading back into battle. It doesn't matter who lives and dies. The zombies are the stars of the show and they are horrifically entertaining.

Co-writer/director Tommy Wirkola is clearly a fan of the horror genre and has a blast tearing up his protagonists.

His love of the material is infectious and it's hard not to smile, laugh, and jump whenever he spills blood on the snow.

Little Mice big on ideas

Three Blind Mice

Director: Matthew Newton
Stars: Ewen Leslie, Toby Shmitz, Matthew Newton
Classification: STC
Rating: ●●●

PHIL BROWN
 for Metro Canada

Three Blind Mice is a small and surprising little movie from Australia that might lack the polish and production values of a Hollywood product, but makes up for it by focusing on psychologically complex characters and painfully realistic environments that are far too rarely found in films these days.

Writer, director and star Matthew Newton clearly shot the film on a shoestring budget, but turned the film's limitations into its strengths. He's crafted an intimate character study with a collection of stellar performances.

Newton co-stars with

A scene from the low-budget Australian drama Three Blind Mice.

Ewen Leslie and Toby Shmitz as a trio of navy officers enjoying shore-leave in Sydney before being shipped to Iraq. Shmitz plays a guilt-ridden officer anxious to see his girlfriend. Leslie plays a depressed and quiet man with a secret, and Newton plays a loudmouth braggart desperate for a night of lewd behaviour before heading back to duty.

The set up sounds like a certain singing-and-dancing tale with Frank Sinatra, but the movie Three Blind Mice most closely resembles the underrated '70s Jack Nicholson classic The Last Detail. Like that film, this is a darkly funny anti-war satire dressed as a character piece. When the secret that binds the three men is revealed, the film turns into a rather poignant critique of blind military obedience.

The script can meander in a distracting way and the no-budget shaky video camera aesthetic will irritate many audience members, but Three Blind Mice is still a funny and thought provoking film with surprising emotional weight.

Korean fest kicks off with film on presidents

SCREENING One of Asia's top film festivals opened Thursday by taking a light-hearted look at the South Korean presidency.

Jang Jin's Good Morning President playfully examines the personal lives of three successive heads of state — a former dissident conflicted by what to do with a winning lottery ticket; a dashing young politician who juggles a kidney transplant and a standoff with North Korea; and the country's first female leader, whose husband's real-estate investments beget a scandal that threatens the presidency and her marriage.

The director told reporters on the opening day of the 14th Pusan International Film Festival that he wanted to show the human side of elected leaders after the end of authoritarian rule in the 1980s. South Korea's military-backed government relented to calls for a presidential election

Nine-day event

- The nine-day event in the southern beach resort city will show 355 movies from 70 countries — 98 of which will be world premieres.

in 1987 after months of massive protests across the country. "I was born in the 1970s. I grew up in South Korea. I also felt oppressed by a dictator-like president. But as time passed we have people who put in effort so we can feel a little closer to the president," he said after the film's world premiere.

At the opening ceremony later Thursday, members of the nine-woman South Korean group Girls' Generation serenaded Pearl Harbor star Josh Hartnett with the movie's theme song, There You'll Be. The full band then twisted and turned for a performance of their fast number Tell Me Your Wish.

be as cruel as others."

While the kind words may stem from the fact that Bublé is advertising his new album — Crazy Love — all over Hilton's website, it can't hurt to say nice things about the blogger. Especially because the subject matter on his new disc could put him back on the celebrity website radar: it's about Blunt.

Actually, it's more about relationships in general — with an album full of covers he couldn't reveal too much about his break up — but the topic was inspired by the failed union.

"It's more about being introspective than speaking about issues in my relationship," says Bublé. "It's more about myself and the fact that I'm 34 years old. I look at this time in my life as an opportunity to work on myself and become a better guy."

To get his message across, Bublé put together his most diverse set of songs yet. The record tackles the poppy Cry Me a River, which was originally written for Ella Fitzgerald,

He even penned two of his own tunes, Hold On and Haven't Met You, which he says is "tons easier" than covering someone else's song.

"It's easier because no one can compare the song to the 400 iconic artist who recorded it before you," he says.

He likes writing music though, and while he says he'll never release an album of only original material, making his own tracks has helped silence his critics.

Music can make us thankful

Prices have dropped, turntables are back and the Internet brings us fresh new sounds

SoundCheck

Alan

metronews.ca/soundcheck

The price of CDs has finally come down: Part of the reason file-sharing took off so fast ten years ago was because we wanted more music than we could afford to buy. And yes, CDs were too expensive. That's all changed today. Market forces 1, high prices, 0.

The price of singles has gone back to levels not seen since the '70s: Buying a 7-inch single back then cost anywhere from 99 cents to $1.29. What are the a la carte prices on for digital singles sold on iTunes and elsewhere? Ninety-nine cents to $1.29 — or, in some cases, even lower.

They still make turntables: Towards the ends of the '90s, every Christmas was framed as "the last time you'll ever be able to buy a turntable." Vinyl coughed up a lung and lingered in the ICU for a few years, but now it's been reborn. Good thing a number of manufacturers kept the faith.

Box sets: People will spend money on something that's perceived to have good value. Sure, you can BitTorrent Neil Young's entire oeuvre for free, but nothing downloadable can match the richness of his Archives box set.

The Internet: In the old days, people got their music from radio, magazines, friends, video channels and the guy at the record store. That still applies today, but now we have Facebook, Twitter, SoundCloud, YouTube, RapidShare, streams and an infinite number of BitTorrent sites. Instead of someone filtering the music for us, the entire universe lays open. Infinite choice is sometimes frustrating and scary, but would you have it any other way?

MySpace: I know it's fashionable to bash MySpace as people sing the glories of Facebook, but if make your music available to the world, the cheapest and most efficient way to a band and you don't have a MySpace page, it's like you don't exist. I can't tell you the number of bands and songs I've discovered this way.

DRM is dead, dead, dead: The thing for which I'm most thankful this year. It seems quaint and laughable that the recording industry demanded digital locks on downloads and restricted the number of times we could burn a purchased track to CD. Consumers 1, DRM proponents, 0.

Swift keeps 'Fearless' fairy tale going

COUNTRY MUSIC Taylor Swift isn't ready for her fairy tale to end, so she's doing what any other savvy 19-year-old would do — continuing the story.

The country singer says a second leg of her Fearless tour will kick off in Australia in February.

She'll also be playing nearly 30 cities throughout the U.S. and Canada.

"We had so much fun on the Fearless tour the first time around that we decided that we had to keep going with it," she says.

The 2010 tour opens Feb. 4 in Brisbane. Swift will do five shows in Australia. All 52 concerts on the 2009 tour sold out in minutes, including New York's Madison Square Garden. Swift said she hopes the second go-round will be as successful.

Life in between Aerosmith

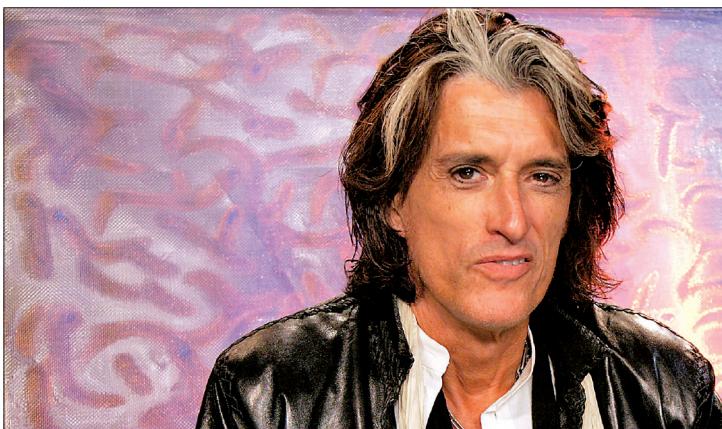

With band's tour cancelled, guitarist Joe Perry made the most of a bad situation

Joe Perry says there's still life in Aerosmith, but after an unlikely turn of events, he focused his energy on his latest solo project, Have Guitar, Will Travel.

While the record was in the planning stages, it was the cancellation of Aerosmith's tour because of lead singer Steven Tyler's stage accident that propelled Perry to finish his fifth solo effort, out this week. Perry says it came together in record time, using his other band's latest effort as a measuring stick.

The guitarist was candid in a recent interview on the making of the new album, how he found his singer and his touring plans.

Q After Steven's accident cancelled the tour, you quickly assembled this band. Tell us about it?

Joe Perry's fifth solo effort, Have Guitar, Will Travel, is out this week.

A My wife found him on YouTube, and it was one of those chance things ... she's not in the habit of looking at rock singers on YouTube. As it turned out, she came across this guy singing on YouTube. His name is Hagen. He's from a small town in Germany. He really, really had the pipes.

Q What about the Aerosmith tour?

A Aerosmith has four gigs that we have to do at the end of October.

We were contracted to do those months and months ago.

I hope Steven is well enough to do those. Aside from that, it's kind of wide open.

My plan — and I hope it works out — is basically to put the record out, promote it and do kind of what we're doing now.

Taking a break from green screen

Sanctuary cast went on location in Tokyo

When cast members of the Canadian sci-fi series Sanctuary shoot a scene that takes place abroad, they don't usually get to see the landscape of the featured city, meet its people or breathe its air.

That's because most of the show is shot in front of a green screen in Vancouver, and it isn't until post-production that scenes are illustrated with the far-flung locales visited by Dr. Helen Magnus (Amanda Tapping) and her protégé,

Jackson MD faces arrest

DEADBEAT Michael Jackson's doctor, who is being investigated in the singer's death, could now face arrest and lose his medical licence after missing a hearing to explain late child support payments, the Las Vegas district attorney said yesterday. Metro's 7th Heaven: Metro taps what's hot right now

ARTIST The Burnaby boy returns to what he does best — making other people's songs his own. His new album Crazy Love will surely sell millions, like his previous efforts. A tour is on the cards as well. Girls, keep you smelling salts ready.

Paranormal Activity

FILM This $15,000 horror flick is being hailed as the Blair Witch Project of the online age. The tale of a couple's nighttime ordeal is backed by a unique marketing campaign — you can "demand" its release in your city through the film's website. Greater the number of hits, better the chances of it coming to a theatre near you. "If 1,000,000 visitors 'demand' the film, it will open nationwide, making it the first-ever major film release decided by you," the site claims.

Drag Me To Hell

DVD If you are a fan of The Evil Dead, you might like this. If you are a fan of The Evil Dead: Army of Darkness, you will call it the film of the year. Starring Alison Lohman and Justin Long, the movie is vintage Sam Raimi — evil curses, ugly demons and a storyline that stretches plausibility. In other words, horror heaven.

The Wild Things: David Eggers

BOOK With Spike Jonze's big-screen version of Where The Wild Things Are around the corner, you and your kids could revisit Maurice Sendak's classic tale. Or you can hunker down with this novel-sized re-adaptation by Eggers, who also penned the film's screenplay. No matter what your choice, it's going to be monster fun.

The Big Bang Theory

TV The geeks-meet-beauty comedy opened its third season with a bang, garnering nearly $13 million viewers. Right now, it's breathing down sitcom king Two and A Half Men. With lead Jim Parsons' impeccable comic timing and genuine smarts on its side, the CBS show may well wear the crown soon.

Yann Martel

AUTHOR The acclaimed Canadian novelist is going to space. Sort of. The Life of Pi author's poem What The Drop of Water Had To Say sets the theme of a show, which will be hosted by Cirque du Soleil founder Guy Laliberte from the International Space Station today.

Christmas in the Heart: Bob Dylan

ALBUM Skeptics, prepare for eggnog on your faces. Turns out the 68-year-old legend is vowing critics with his take on yuletide cheer. The Los Angeles Times called it "an astute exploration of the roots of holiday music." The fact that all proceeds from sales go to food charities is another good reason to ring them bells.

Phantom takes a ride to Coney Island

The Phantom of the Opera is coming back — but this time, he'll be haunting the amusement park at New York's Coney Island.

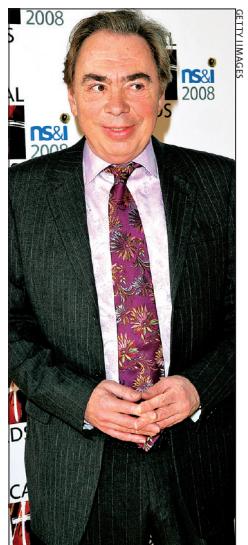

Star composer Andrew Lloyd Webber on Thursday announced a long-awaited sequel to his massively successful The Phantom of the Opera, one of the world's best loved and longest running musicals.

"There's unfinished business," Webber told journalists assembled for a teaser — new song featuring the titular Phantom, played by Ramin Karimloo, and his love interest Christine, played by American Sierra Boggess.

"I don't regard this as a sequel; it's a standalone piece," Webber said.

The production is called Love Never Dies. It is due to open in London in March. The musical also will be staged in New York in November 2010 and will open in Australia in 2011.

The musical picks up a decade after the original's conclusion, and has the Phantom trading his customary hideout beneath the Paris opera house for Coney Island, the iconic Andrew Lloyd Webber.

Brooklyn amusement park known for its roller coasters and "Nathan's Famous" hot dogs. Webber said he wanted to produce a sequel because the original's ending, which sees Christine leave the brooding Phantom for his rival Raoul, was unsatisfactory.

Alicia Keys gets entrepreneurial

Alicia Keys has influenced many lives with her soulful, heartaching piano-driven songs for almost a decade. Now the 12-time Grammy winner is ready to inspire others without singing a tune.

Keys is launching AK Worldwide, a new company that will handle the singer's projects, especially those outside of music.

"It really explores the ways I can affect the world in a positive way, even outside of music," Keys said in an interview.

"It is really about finding ways to bring forth things into the world that will give you and all the people that encounter them, and myself, inspiration," she said.

The first project for the 28-year-old is The Barber's Daughters, a handcrafted jewelry line engraved with messages of hope and wisdom.

"The words, when you read them, they really do resonate with you. They kind of inspire you to want to find that place in yourself," she said, sporting a silver oval ring that read: "May you find inspiration and meaning soaked in the wonders of the imagination cradled in compassion of the heart and hold a will to make difference."

Keys also will launch a new Web site, iamasuperwoman.com, devoted to spotlighting inspirational women and causes that will fill a missing gap in the blogosphere, Keys said.

"It really calls out to all those brilliant, amazing, fantastic women every day that are doing their thing and need kind of a community to support each other," she said.

Keys said the creativity required to be a businesswoman has spilled over to her music, and that it's reflected on her fourth studio CD, The Element of Freedom, to be released Dec. 1.

"We have the ability to be totally free, to be totally unstoppable, and there's no heights that you can't reach," Keys said. "So I totally love that and that's what the music feels like, and that's what everything that I'm doing sounds like."

The lead single, Doesn't Mean Anything, teaches people that having success is unimportant unless there's someone to share it with, Keys said.

The next single, Try Sleeping With a Broken Heart, is "mean, mean, mean," she said.

The CD finds Keys working again with her musical partner, Crucial Keys, and producer Jeff Bhasker, who recently produced tracks on the latest albums from Jay-Z and Kanye West.

Keys credits Oprah Winfrey and other business-minded people with turning on her entrepreneurial spirit.

Nobel prize goes to German Herta Mueller

LITERATURE Herta Mueller, a member of Romania's ethnic German minority who was persecuted for her critical depictions of life behind the Iron Curtain, won the 2009 Nobel Prize in literature Thursday in an award seen as a nod to the 20th anniversary of communism's collapse. Mueller was honoured for work that "with the concentration of poetry and the frankness of prose, depicts the landscape of the dispossessed," the Swedish Academy said.

The 56-year-old author made her debut in 1982 with a collection of short stories titled Niederungen, or Nadirs, depicting the harshness of life in a small, German-speaking village in Romania. It was promptly censored by the communist government. In 1984 an uncensored version was smuggled to Germany, where it was published and devoured by readers. That work was followed by Oppressive Tango in Romania but she was eventually prohibited from publishing inside her country for her criticism of dictator Nicolae Ceausescu's rule and its feared secret police, the Securitate.

Key document in Travolta case was burned: Officer

CELEB JUSTICE A Bahamas police officer testified yesterday that a woman on trial for allegedly trying to blackmail John Travolta acknowledged burning a document at the centre of the case.

Pleasant Bridgewater, one of two defendants in the alleged plot to demand $25 million US from the movie star, told police the day she was arrested that she destroyed the form with Travolta's signature "after she noticed the situation was about to explode," Det. Deborah Thompson said.

The document was related to the treatment of Travolta's 16-year-old son, Jett, who suffered a seizure at a family vacation home on Grand Bahama island. It would have released the ambulance driver of liability had the youth been flown to the U.S. for treatment, as Travolta initially wanted.

Jett instead was taken to a hospital where he died on Jan. 2. Travolta has testified that the ambulance driver, Tarino Lightbourne, threatened to sell the media stories suggesting he was at fault in his son's death. Bridgewater, who is accused of negotiating on Lightbourne's behalf, is a lawyer who resigned from the Bahamas senate following her arrest on Jan. 22. Both defendants have pleaded not guilty to extortion.

Thompson testified she was searching Bridgewater's law office when the defendant said she would not find the document. Bridgewater said she had burned it and flushed it down the toilet at her house. Police then went to the house and police took a candle as evidence, Thompson said.

Thompson was among the final prosecution witnesses at the trial that began Sept. 21. Defence lawyers plan to call four witnesses including a doctor from the resort community.

Britney wants full custody of kids

BUT HOW WILL SHE PROVE KEVIN'S A JACKASS?

Britney Spears is ready to take full custody of her children, and she's reportedly about to file papers to make it a reality. "Britney feels that leaving Kevin (Federline) in charge has turned her sons into cursing, ill-mannered little boys who don't behave. Britney wants to be the one who chooses where the boys go to school and where they go to church, a source tells the National Enquirer. "She wants full custody and for Kevin to have visitation. Britney feels that Kevin is now the one with problems that the judge needs to hear about. She believes he's become a poor role model for Sean and Jayden." METRO NEWS SERVICES

Daisy was mine too, says Nick

DEARLY DEPARTED Nick Lachey is devastated by the death of Jessica Simpson's lesbian dog, femalefirst.co.uk reports.

The former boy band singer — who got the pooch, Daisy, for his ex-wife when they were married — was horrified to hear the beloved mutt had been snatched by a coyote.

He said: "I think a lot of people forgot that Daisy was my dog too — for years. I'm sure she was upset. I was upset."

However,

the 35-year-old star has had time to come to terms with his grief, and is now feeling philosophical about Daisy's demise. He told Access Hollywood: "I didn't reach out to Jessica. It was sad to hear that had happened, but it's part of the cycle of life."

After Daisy disappeared, Jessica posted a heartfelt plea on Twitter for information on her whereabouts.

Jessica, 29, wrote: "My heart is broken because a coyote took my precious Daisy right in front of our eyes, HORROR! We are searching. Hoping. Please help! (sic)"

ARIES

MARCH 21-APRIL 20

You may have to cut corners and bend rules today but anything is preferable to allowing a task to encroach on your weekend.

LIBRA

SEPT 23-OCT 23

It's a great time to be a Libra, and it will be even better today as your confidence blossoms. Don't listen to those who say you should be cautious.

TAURUS

APRIL 21-MAY 21

Your desire to impress other people could lead to you overestimating your abilities and taking on too much work today.

SCORPIO

OCT 24-NOV 22

If you were planning something spectacular over the next few days you might like to think again. There's no need to rush or take risks.

GEMINI

MAY 22-JUNE 21

There is nothing you cannot do if you want it enough. You can turn dreams into realities today, and any day, simply by being yourself.

SAGITTARIUS

NOV 23-DEC 21

It's likely you will have to deal with people who challenge your idea of what is important in life. Don't let them persuade you to change your outlook.

CANCER

JUNE 22-JULY 22

The important thing today is that you know your own mind. Others' opinions may look inviting but you don't need to adopt what they believe.

CAPRICORN

DEC 22-JAN 20

It may seem as if you are being swept along by forces over which you have no control. What matters though is how you deal with those forces.

LEO

JULY 23-AUG 23

This is not a good time to be adventurous financially. However, this is a good time for travel and social activities, so get out and have fun, but watch costs.

AQUARIUS

JAN 21-FEB 18

You won't have to spend a lot of money to get what you desire today: most likely you will get it for free. Your persuasive powers are considerable.

VIRGO

AUG 24-SEPT 22

You must be aware of what is going on around you and you must recognize to what extent other people's decisions affect your ambitions.

PISCES

FEB 19-MARCH 20

If you try to get out of something you have already agreed to do you won't be the most popular Pisces in the neighborhood today.
